FALL REPORTED SERIOUSLY ILL

Former Cabinet Member Threatened With Pneumonia.

IN GREATLY WEAKENED STATE

His Appearance Before Senate Investigating Committee Indefinitely Postponed—Inquiry Into Leases of Naval Oil Reserves Enters Upon Second Week of Sensational Disclosures.

Washington, Jan. 28.—Bronchial pneumonia threatens to complicate the illness of Albert B. Fall, central figure in the naval oil reserve scandal. His condition is regarded as critical. At the home of Colonel James M. Zevely, attorney for the Sinclair Oil interests, it was learned that the former secretary of the interior spent a most restless night. Everything possible is being done to ward off the onset of pneumonia, regarded as most serious, not only because of the patient's age, but because of his weakened state occasioned by the duration of his illness.

Fall's appearance before the public lands committee of the senate to testify relative to his leasing of the Teapot Dome tract and naval reserve lands in California, and his receipt of money and liberty bonds from lessees, is now indefinitely postponed.

The senate investigation of the leasing of the navy's oil lands by Secretary Fall to Harry F. Sinclair and E. L. Doheny today entered upon a second week of sensational disclosures.

The first bomb was set off last Monday by Archie Roosevelt, son of the ex-president, brother of Theodore Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy, and until last week an employee of Sinclair.

Roosevelt startled the country by testifying that he had heard from Wahlberg, Sinclair's private secretary, that Sinclair's check for $68,000 had been forwarded to Tom Johnson, Fall's ranch foreman at Three Rivers, New Mexico.

There is every likelihood that the disclosures this coming week will be even more sensational than those that have gone before. The actual disclosures will be resumed when ex-Secretary Fall takes the stand to explain away, if he can, the grave and momentous charges which lie against him.

Maze of Contradictions.
The record of the investigation is a maze of contradictions as to dates, facts, conversations, agreements, transactions and motives. Involved in these inconsistencies are the word and reputation of some of the men highest in the country's public life.

Wahlberg called Archie Roosevelt, according to the latter's story, to his office on Jan. 16 and advise him to leave because he, Wahlberg had in his possession $68,000 of Sinclair's canceled checks to Fall's ranch foreman, and Sinclair was about to be blown up in the investigation by Senator Welsh's committee.

Roosevelt has the advantage that his story was not changed; Wahlberg's explanation is shifted. Last Monday he testified that he had only been talking to Roosevelt about some cattle shipments Sinclair had made Fall and that his words: "Six or eight cows" and "some other stock" had been misunderstood by Roosevelt as "sixty-eight thousand" dollars of canceled checks to Fall's ranch foreman.

On Saturday Wahlberg reappeared and had a wholly different explanation of Roosevelt's misunderstanding. Now he remembers that when Roosevelt mentioned on him he had on his desk and called $68,000 of Sinclair's checks to Sam Hildreth the trainer of Zeck, famous race horse. What the senate committee wants to know is how it was possible for Wahlberg not to remember this when he was down here last Monday.

A member of the senate committee asks why did Doheny delay so long in making his explanation Thursday to the effect that he had loaned Fall $100,000 in cash, while Fall was negotiating oil leases in California. Doheny says that he urged Fall to tell the truth about this on the stand last October. Fall denies this. The senator also asks what motive induced Ned McLean, prominent Washington publisher and an intimate of Fall, to aver in writing a month ago that he was the one who loaned Fall the $100,000, which the committee knew he got from somebody to spend for the purchase of Ed Harris' ranch at Three Rivers. McLean said this in a note, but retracted it when Senator Walsh went down to Palm Beach and questioned him under oath.

Pomeroy was convicted when a boy of 15 of the murder of a boy and girl. He has been playing the stock market recently from his cell in Charlestown, (Mass.) state prison. Thus far he is ahead of the game.

ROUNDING UP REBELS

New Phase of Mexican Revolution Now Under Way.

Mexico City, Jan. 28.—Another phase of the revolution is now under way. This period is one of federal offensives against the major rebel groups, one in the state of Michoacan, the other in the states of Puebla and Vera Cruz.

Jalisco, the former stronghold of the Estradistas, is again under federal control. The Estradistas have retired into the adjacent state of Michoacan, where they were last reported attacking Morelia, the capital.

President Obregon's strategy calls for a roundup of rebels on both fronts, so that decisive battles may be fought with them. His objectives are rebel armies, not cities. He is personally directing the offensive against them in the state of Michoacan.

A plot to turn Juarez garrison over to the rebels is said to have been nipped by Commander Roman Lopez. Five men were executed, it is said.

Federal forces under General Eugenio Martinez routed Sanchista rebels with heavy losses at Esperanza. The federals captured more than 1,000 prisoners. General Fortunato Maycotte, one of the trio of principal military leaders of the rebellion, was killed. The brother of Adolfo De la Huerta was also reported killed. Among the prisoners was General Alba.

PEACE MOVE MADE BY MACDONALD

Premier Would Internationalize Rhine Frontier

Paris, Jan. 28.—Premier MacDonald of England, through Belgium as an intermediary, unofficially proposed a settlement of the question of France's security by internationalizing the Rhine frontier and putting the neutral strip under the league of nations.

The narrow No Man's Land thus created would become a literal barricade protection for both France and Germany, obligating members of the league of nations to wage war against any nation violating its sanctity. With France's security thus guaranteed, Premier MacDonald believes the way will be opened to revise the treaty of Versailles and put the whole European problem on a newer and firmer basis.

Foreign Minister Jaspar hastened immediately from Brussels to Paris, where he had an hour and a half conference with Premier Poincare. The strictest secrecy surrounds this conversation, but from reliable sources it is indicated that the meeting was practically only concerned with the project put forward by MacDonald. In diplomatic quarters, however, it is realized that Premier Poincare is hostile to almost any English program, and that therefore, as long as he heads the French government, there is little likelihood that MacDonald's idea will bear fruit.

REED ANNOUNCES HIS CANDIDACY

Will Seek Democratic Nomination for President.

ACTION FOLLOWS PARLEYS

Missouri Senator, Who Issues Declaration of Principles, Says He Shall Ask Indorsement of the Democratic Party In His State—Says Constitution Must Be Maintained in Both Letter and Spirit.

St. Louis, Jan. 28.—Senator James A. Reed, Democrat, following a series of conferences with a number of prominent Missouri Democratic leaders, made the following declaration of principles and announced his candidacy for the presidency of the United States. Reed said in part:

"In connection with the announcement that I shall ask the indorsement of the Democratic party of Missouri in the national convention, it seems to me proper to refer to a few of the grave problems confronting the nation, reserving for the future a fuller discussion.

"The constitution is the great charter of freedom. It must be both in letter and spirit maintained and defended. All attempts to pervert or undermine the constitution should meet with stern and effective resistance.

"Civil and religious liberty, complete freedom of conscience, property rights and the independence of the courts of justice must be preserved without invasion or impairment.

"Everyone favors, so far as possible, a radical reduction of tax burden, but the question whether such reduction shall be chiefly upon the moderate incomes or upon the great incomes is one upon which the political parties sharply differ. The Democratic party favors making the principal reduction upon the smaller incomes.

"Recognizing fully the duty to restrain the excesses of great aggregation of capital, nevertheless the constant interference by government agencies with honest business of the country is intolerable and should be discontinued.

"Both political parties solemnly promised our soldiers adjusted compensation. It remains to be decided whether this pledge is to be broken or to be kept. The Democratic party intends to redeem its promises and keep the faith with the soldier.

"The farmers are suffering from conditions of unprecedented hardship. It is the duty of the government to employ for their relief all reasonable and practical measures. The Democratic party proposes to accomplish this relief in part by a substantial reduction in tariff rates, so that the farmer who is compelled to sell his products in European markets will have the benefit of freer competition on articles he is compelled to purchase.

"The development of a great system of internal improvements, embracing the development of rivers as national highways, will bring a substantial reduction in freight rates, provide competition and accomplish further relief. Railroad freight rates should be adjusted so that the farmer may market his crops without the payment of excessive or exorbitant charges."

WOULD ANNUL OIL LEASES

United States Senators Join in Demanding Action.

EXECUTIVE ORDER SUGGESTED

President Coolidge Expected to Take Direct Action at Once Toward Annulment of Navy Oil Reserve Leases—Senate Investigating Committee Drafting a Resolution—Opinions Expressed by Senators.

Washington, Jan. 28.—Republican, Democratic and Farmer-Labor senators joined in demanding that the naval oil leases be annulled. They said:

Senator Norris, Nebraska, progressive Republican: "My judgment is that all of the leases granted to the Sinclair and Doheny interests are, and always have been, illegal. They could and should be voided now by executive order from the white house."

Senator Magnus Johnson, Minnesota Farmer-Laborite: "It appears plain to me that congress has plenty of power to annul all of these leases. To throw them into the courts for determination would be for the government to get into a long drawn out contest."

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader of the senate: "The senate should pass a resolution at once declaring all of the oil leases void. The act of Secretary Denby in consenting to these leases was a neglect to properly perform the duties of his office. The act of Secretary Fall in signing the leases was an illegal act."

Senator Harrell of Oklahoma, Republican: "I complained to Secretary Fall at the time the leases were being made against them. I also complained to President Harding. I favor canceling these leases if there is any legal ground for doing it, and the prosecution of anyone guilty of fraud in connection with them."

Senator Wheeler of Montana, Democrat: "The president should call for the resignation of Denby, Daugherty, Roosevelt and any other official under the president who had anything to do with the signing of these leases."

Senator Heflin of Alabama, Democrat: "Since the president now has declared to the country that he will employ counsel outside the department of justice to prosecute in the oil leases, I think his next logical step would be to invite the attorney general to resign from his cabinet."

Senator Capper of Kansas, Republican: "President Coolidge's statement that criminal prosecutions will be instituted in every instance where evidence disclosed in the oil lease investigation indicates criminal guilt and that every public interest shall be amply safeguarded is most assuring. The country will most emphatically approve this course."

The senate investigating committee has drafted a resolution calling on President Coolidge to employ special counsel and proceed for the annulment of the Teapot Dome oil lease. It was announced at the white house that the president is to take direct action within a few days toward annulment of the leases.

THE WEATHER.

Ohio—Tuesday: Generally fair; warmer.

INTEREST EARNINGS BIG

Active State Funds Deposited in 384 Banks in Ohio.

Columbus, Jan. 28.—State Treasurer Harry Day announced that interest earning on state funds for the year ending Dec. 31 exceeded those of the previous year by $55,000. The active fund of $23,354,500, deposited in 384 banks of the state, earned $265,627.23, as compared with $212,451 in 1922. The inactive fund earned $74,000 last year, after a profit of only $72,000 the previous year.

Rates of interest on active funds range from 3 per cent to 5.95 per cent, a bank in Bellaire paying the high premium. Inactive funds, on which the state draws for expenses, pays from 2.52 to 2.58 per cent. It is estimated the interest for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1924, will approximate $1,000,000, or nearly $3,000 a day.

The last of the money from direct tax levies has been paid the state, the law abolishing tax having been passed nearly a year ago. The only money paid into the treasury in direct taxes now is the 3-mill levy for soldier bonus bonds, and this money is reserved for paying bonds when they fall due.

HIPLESS GIRL RETURNS

Plump Women Will Not Be Fashionable This Year.

Paris, Jan. 28.—The hipless girl is back again. The first big dressmaker's opening of the season was held by Georgette. It demonstrated, as a disgusted plump American society woman exclaimed: "Any woman who is not built like a slat will not be fashionable this year."

Georgette's models, which indicate the style tendency for spring and summer, are literally flabbergasting in their extreme slenderness. Many of the models were so tight that the mannequins seemed to have hobbled knees. The waistline is invariably four inches below the hips, giving a sack-like appearance above the glaucous tightness below. Women's arms have to be extraordinarily long to reach the latest pockets, which are only slightly above the knee, and generally with a huge colored handkerchief flopping out.

Couple Asphyxiated.

Cleveland, Jan. 28.—C. C. Carman and wife, found dead in their apartment in East Cleveland, were asphyxiated, according to the coroner. The bodies were discovered with a gas heater burning nearby.

WOULD ANNUL OIL LEASES

United States Senators Join in Demanding Action.

EXECUTIVE ORDER SUGGESTED

President Coolidge Expected to Take Direct Action at Once Toward Annulment of Navy Oil Reserve Leases—Senate Investigating Committee Drafting a Resolution—Opinions Expressed by Senators.

Washington, Jan. 28.—Republican, Democratic and Farmer-Labor senators joined in demanding that the naval oil leases be annulled. They said:

Senator Norris, Nebraska, progressive Republican: "My judgment is that all of the leases granted to the Sinclair and Doheny interests are, and always have been, illegal. They could and should be voided now by executive order from the white house."

Senator Magnus Johnson, Minnesota Farmer-Laborite: "It appears plain to me that congress has plenty of power to annul all of these leases. To throw them into the courts for determination would be for the government to get into a long drawn out contest."

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader of the senate: "The senate should pass a resolution at once declaring all of the oil leases void. The act of Secretary Denby in consenting to these leases was a neglect to properly perform the duties of his office. The act of Secretary Fall in signing the leases was an illegal act."

Senator Harrell of Oklahoma, Republican: "I complained to Secretary Fall at the time the leases were being made against them. I also complained to President Harding. I favor canceling these leases if there is any legal ground for doing it, and the prosecution of anyone guilty of fraud in connection with them."

Senator Wheeler of Montana, Democrat: "The president should call for the resignation of Denby, Daugherty, Roosevelt and any other official under the president who had anything to do with the signing of these leases."

Senator Heflin of Alabama, Democrat: "Since the president now has declared to the country that he will employ counsel outside the department of justice to prosecute in the oil leases, I think his next logical step would be to invite the attorney general to resign from his cabinet."

Senator Capper of Kansas, Republican: "President Coolidge's statement that criminal prosecutions will be instituted in every instance where evidence disclosed in the oil lease investigation indicates criminal guilt and that every public interest shall be amply safeguarded is most assuring. The country will most emphatically approve this course."

The senate investigating committee has drafted a resolution calling on President Coolidge to employ special counsel and proceed for the annulment of the Teapot Dome oil lease. It was announced at the white house that the president is to take direct action within a few days toward annulment of the leases.

Sarazan Defeats Britisher.

Los Angeles, Jan. 28.—Gene Sarazen, American professional golf champion, defeated Arthur Havers, British open title holder, 5 and 4, in the finals of their 72 hole match for the unofficial championship of the world. The first 36 holes were played in Lake Merid course at San Francisco Friday.

MUTINY SUPPRESSED

Separatist Troops in the Palatinate Strike For Higher Pay.

Berlin, Jan. 28.—Separatist troops occupying the government building at Speyer, capital of the Palatinate, mutinied and went on strike for higher pay and better food. The mutiny has been practically put down with the aid of French colored troops. The mutineers threatened to do violence to their leaders, who fled to the French barracks, returning with French and separatist shock troops. These surrounded the mutineers, capturing most of them. The prisoners were chained hands and feet and locked in the cellar of the government building.

THE WEATHER.

Ohio—Tuesday: Generally fair; warmer.

INTEREST EARNINGS BIG

Active State Funds Deposited in 384 Banks in Ohio.

Columbus, Jan. 28.—State Treasurer Harry Day announced that interest earning on state funds for the year ending Dec. 31 exceeded those of the previous year by $55,000. The active fund of $23,354,500, deposited in 384 banks of the state, earned $265,627.23, as compared with $212,451 in 1922. The inactive fund earned $74,000 last year, after a profit of only $72,000 the previous year.

Rates of interest on active funds range from 3 per cent to 5.95 per cent, a bank in Bellaire paying the high premium. Inactive funds, on which the state draws for expenses, pays from 2.52 to 2.58 per cent. It is estimated the interest for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1924, will approximate $1,000,000, or nearly $3,000 a day.

The last of the money from direct tax levies has been paid the state, the law abolishing tax having been passed nearly a year ago. The only money paid into the treasury in direct taxes now is the 3-mill levy for soldier bonus bonds, and this money is reserved for paying bonds when they fall due.

HIPLESS GIRL RETURNS

Plump Women Will Not Be Fashionable This Year.

Paris, Jan. 28.—The hipless girl is back again. The first big dressmaker's opening of the season was held by Georgette. It demonstrated, as a disgusted plump American society woman exclaimed: "Any woman who is not built like a slat will not be fashionable this year."

Georgette's models, which indicate the style tendency for spring and summer, are literally flabbergasting in their extreme slenderness. Many of the models were so tight that the mannequins seemed to have hobbled knees. The waistline is invariably four inches below the hips, giving a saak-like appearance above the gluteal tightness below. Women's arms have to be extraordinarily long to reach the latest pockets, which are only slightly above the knee, and generally with a huge colored handkerchief flopping out.

Couple Asphyxiated.

Cleveland, Jan. 28.—C. C. Carman and wife, found dead in their apartment in East Cleveland, were asphyxiated, according to the coroner. The bodies were discovered with a gas heater burning nearby.

SQUARE AT LAST

By ADDIE GRAVES

© 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

SHE was named Margaret Moon. By those who had run up against her the wrong way she had been re-named "Mag Thistle." Her affectionate young brother called her "the buggy walking-stick," she was so attenuated.

His card read, "Aaron Turnipsk." A friend, who sought the reputation of being a wit, dubbed Aaron "Itutabuga." His shape and color at the top proclaimed the quality of his friend's imagination.

Aaron's love for Margaret had a girth equaling his own. Still, had not a satellite appeared in the shape of a dainty French dancing master, he would not have proposed so soon. The following is the way Margaret expressed her idea of it:

"I would as soon think of living in a canary cage with an elephant! You would be just like Aunt Nora's husband; when he is at home he is either eating or snoring. You have no more ambition than a settling hen. Men should never be fat. And—I never could stand being called 'Mrs. Turnipsk!'"

Aaron managed one return jab: "You are quite likely to be an herbaceous, olive-branched widow if you marry that cockroach of a dancing master."

The barber shop gossips wondered at Aaron's silence during the ensuing two weeks. Why he had given notice was a mystery. The truth was, Aaron had determined to reduce. He obtained a job on a truck to get exercise. His aching muscles prevented sleep, even if he had not got so much fatter. It got on his nerves when the family told him to get a night job—that he would never reduce while he slept so much.

So he sought a milk station. A farmer sized him up disapprovingly, but was forced to take him on, there being no other applicant for the job. On the way to the station he passed Margaret and the dancing master. Margaret had been working in a candy-shop. She showed it. Her angles were delicately rounded out and her face a pure oval, "with just the right amount of bloom on it to attract bees—drones—like the dancing master"—thought Aaron.

For six weeks Aaron bobbed up and down like a bell buoy in a gale over the milk route. But alas! He slept coming and going from the city and drank the cream off the cans of milk. To stop his appetite the farmer sent him forth to murder potato bugs. These entrancing creatures neither quelled his thirst nor his hunger.

Then the farmer led Aaron to the onion field, saying, "All reduction methods demand stooping." The farmer did not know of Aaron's fondness for raw onions. They gave him the most burning thirst yet. Hearing the gurgling of a nearby brook, he discovered a cherry orchard. Only the robins knew the cherries were disappearing until the onions were all weeded, when the farmer thought it time to pick them. The birds got all the blame, for Aaron planted all the stones. During the next three years, though, the farmer made hundreds of dollars selling cherry trees.

The scales still showed Aaron was gaining weight. The farmer gave, as his best advice: "Go and get a 'movie' job. If you are a 'movie' star, Margaret will seek you, regardless of how fat you are."

With great joy, Aaron again boarded a train for the West. Before going far, he saw a skeleton of a man who appeared to have an immense vitality for one of his age. After a suitable prelude, Aaron inquired the secret of his condition.

"I am a dancing master. I used to weigh 360 pounds. My name is C. M. Scoot. If you care to allow me to make a human demonstration of you, I will pay you $50 a week and bring you down to 130 pounds in 60 days."

Aaron's face lighted up. He could rival the French dancing master on his own grounds. He forgot his appetite and thirst. His complexion faded until of an orchid pink. Every two weeks he was obliged to order a new suit. He was a paying proposition, both to the tailor and to C. M. Scoot. They hated to see him depart—under his new, legalized name, Professor Archibald Rose.

But he went—with ten trunks—to conquer Margaret.

Wishing to display his superb masculinity, he walked from the station. As he passed the building containing the dance hall, he saw a "To Let" sign. In ten minutes he had paid a year's rent in advance. He learned that the French master had gone to France. Margaret had not developed nervous prostration. She had never attended school, for the master had thought it would interfere with the manifold flirtations necessary for good business. Now she approached the new professor, on his first evening, with joyous anticipation. Aaron-Archibald did not recognize her for a full minute. Then, appalled, his eyes popped. The candy-shop had rivaled C. M. Scoot. What had been so attractive at his last meeting, was now a series of spheres on all sides under evident pressure.

At last he spoke: "I behold the full moon. May it never shrink to its last quarter. I am only a star."

With his courtliest bow, he sailed away with another star from the Star theater.

"Better End" Is Correct.

When one speaks of pursuing a course of action to the "blitter end" he means that he will follow it to the last and direst extremity—death itself. While the phrase in this sense has the sanction of good usage, it is probable that originally the expression was to the "better end." This latter form is used properly to designate a crisis, or the moment of an extremity. When, for instance, a vessel has paid out all her cable, it has run out to the "better end"—the end which is secured within the vessel and little used. Robinson Crusoe, in describing a terrible storm, says: "We rode with two anchors ahead and the cables veered out to the better end."

Second Childhood

The inspector was paying his monthly visit to the village school. He examined the children in reading and general knowledge as was his custom, and was very much pleased with the answers he received.

After the last question had been asked and answered satisfactorily, he rose to his feet, and, looking slowly around on the upturned faces, he remarked genially:

"I wish I was a little boy at school again."

He allowed a few moments for this to sink in, and then added:

"Do you know why I wish that?"

For a moment or two there was silence, and then a childish voice from the back of the room was heard to say:

"'Cos you've forgot all you ever knowed."

Dairmaids Are Scientists.

The modern dairymaid, the girl student from the agricultural college or domestic science school, is verily a scientist. She is a bacteriologist and a specialist in the art of bottling milk and churning butter. With her scientific knowledge as to why churned cream makes butter, what temperatures are best and when to dash the churn inside with cold water or brine she can literally give her old-fashioned country sister "cards and spades" when it comes to taking full charge of a dairy.

Whistling Pigeons of China.

Small, light whistles attached by means of fine copper wire to the tails of young pigeons by the Chinese, produce a strange series of musical notes as the birds fly, the rushing air making the whistles sound. Care is taken to have the whistle carried by each flock of different pitch, but capable of blending harmoniously, so that the effect of the birds' concerts may be pleasing to the ear. The birds don't mind carrying the whistles; on the contrary, they often seem proud of them.

Even Tin Freezes in Russia.

In northern Russia all sorts of utensils are apt to become useless in winter time, and even tin "catches cold." A tiny grayish spot makes its appearance on the surface of the tin. It grows in size and then others appear. In course of time the metal crumbles into a dark-colored powder. Some years ago a whole shipload of blocks of tin, stored in the customs house of Petrograd during the winter, was found the following spring to have crumbled into dust.

Missed a Lot

An old Scotchman who went to a horse race for the first time was induced to stake five shillings in the third race on a 50-to-1 chance.

The horse won, and when the bookmaker handed the old man his winnings he could hardly believe his eyes.

"Dae ye mean to say I get all this for ma 5 shillings?" he exclaimed.

"You do," replied the bookmaker.

"My conscience!" muttered the Scotsman. "Tell me, mon, how long has this thing been goin' on?"

Forests of Bamboo Used

Whole forests of bamboo are being cut down every year to supply the need for phonograph needles.

Although it grows 40 feet in six weeks, this material requires two years before it is ready to be turned into music producers. After being felled, it is split into proper lengths.

These go into machines that make 180 needles a minute, which are chemically treated to toughen them. They are then polished in hardwood sawdust and wax.—Detroit News.

Why He Quit Golf

A very stout man was once asked why he did not play golf, and this was his reason:

"I did try it once, but I found that when I put the ball where I could see it I could not reach it; and when I put it where I could reach it, I could not see it."

A Student of Nature.

The angler is a student as well as a lover of nature, and he knows that without the insect-eating birds there can be no trees, that without trees there can be no waters, that without waters there can be no fishes, and that without fishes there can be no fishing.—From "The Determined Angler and the Brook Trout," by Charles Bradford.

Second Childhood

The inspector was paying his monthly visit to the village school. He examined the children in reading and general knowledge as was his custom, and was very much pleased with the answers he received.

After the last question had been asked and answered satisfactorily, he rose to his feet, and, looking slowly around on the upturned faces, he remarked genially:

"I wish I was a little boy at school again."

He allowed a few moments for this to sink in, and then added:

"Do you know why I wish that?"

For a moment or two there was silence, and then a childish voice from the back of the room was heard to say:

"'Cos you've forgot all you ever knowed."

GOLD BRICKS

Our People Lose $500,000,000 Annually
in Fake Schemes.

Down to the year 1924 the human race continues to be gullible. The desire of the human race is to get something for nothing, to get rich quick, to win a place among the elect who do not have to work by some sleight-of-hand applied to finance. Some pick pockets, some rob banks, second stories and railroads. Some lie back and dream in the fashion of the story-teller who invented the Arabian Nights. Some print fake stock and sell it. Others, neither criminal nor completely idle, buy this fake stock in the hope of bonanza returns. Of this latter class there must be a great many, for in the United States alone in the year, 1923, according to Secretary Mellon, $500,000,000 was paid out to sharpers by investors who never saw their money again, nor ever will. Mr. Mellon is shocked at the credulity of his fellow citizens, as well he may be and makes a few suggestions in a booklet entitled, "How to Save Your Savings." The rules might be boiled down very easily into one: Never take a chance.

It is good advice. While the ancient urge to get something for nothing persists, people will go on floating shoe-string companies and those who know no better will take the bait. But finding out about such enterprises by personal experience is a form of education which costs annually just above half the national expenditure for all other public education. It is too much. Education of any sort is valuable, but this particular sort of instruction comes too high.—New York World.

Early United States Coins.
The office of the director of the mint says that the earliest coins were authorized by act of congress of April 2, 1792. This act authorized the manufacture of the ten dollar gold eagle, half eagle, quarter eagle, and the silver dollar, half dollar, quarter dollar, dime and half dime. It would be impossible to state which were minted first, as they were all coined about the same time.

Their Ablutions Soon Over.

TO SEEK CAUSES
OF IMMIGRATIONBureau Wants to Ascertain
Relation to Labor Supply.

An investigation of migration and labor supply has been begun by the National Bureau of Economic Research at the request of the National Research council. The work will be done at New York by Dr. Harry Jerome under the supervision of the bureau's director of research, Dr. Wesley C. Mitchell. Outlining the bureau's purpose in undertaking this study, Doctor Mitchell stated:

"Since the National Bureau of Economic Research aims to aid all thoughtful men, however divergent their views of public policy, to base their discussions on objective knowledge as distinguished from subjective opinion, it is keenly interested in the series of investigations into human migration, inaugurated by the National Research council.

"The Research council, representing the scientific interests of the country, holds that the national policy should be shaped in the light of the best obtainable knowledge of the causes and effects of mass movements of population from one country to another. To gain such knowledge it is necessary to enlist the co-operation of workers from several fields—biology, anthropology, sanitary science, psychology, economics and sociology. Accordingly a committee of the council has been appointed to select qualified investigators and to secure such co-ordination of their work as is necessary.

"This committee on scientific problems of human migration, under the chairmanship of Dr. Robert M. Yerkes, has asked the National Bureau of Economic Research to undertake a study of the relation of migration to the supply of labor.

Bureau's Earlier Work.

"Much of the bureau's earlier work will throw light upon the problems of migration. The bearing of per capita income figures for various countries is obvious. Our careful estimates of the population of the United States at the beginning and middle of each year since 1900 afford a better basis than the government figures for computing the annual percentages of immigration and emigration.

"The bureau has also carefully estimated the average number of persons gainfully employed in each year since 1900, and the apportionment of these persons among different industries. These estimates have been published in volume 2 of 'Income in the United States.' Furthermore, there is presented in our recent study of 'Employment Hours and Earnings in Prosperity and Depression' a comprehensive picture of the fluctuations in employment during a typical cycle. In this volume appear for the first time figures showing the absolute changes of employment in all the great industrial groups—figures which provide the long-lacking base which is prerequisite for measuring the absolute volume of employment in other years.

"Upon the foundation laid in the bureau's work and the government's records, Doctor Jerome is building an important superstructure. He believes it will be possible to throw light upon the way in which the varying supply of foreign labor has affected the growth of various industries, and how it has modified their industrial technique and organization.

Hopes For Co-operation.

In addition to making use of the available published material Doctor Jerome hopes to secure the co-operation of industrial leaders and experts in the solution of this problem. To study the effect of labor supply upon industry, however, is only one phase of the problem. It is just as important to discover the causes as well as the effects of immigration. An effort will be made to measure as accurately as possible the importance of the relative forces which cause foreigners to move from their old homes to our shores, or, as is true in many years, to return to their native places of residence.

"Needless to say the field of inquiry is so large that it is impossible to cover it quickly with any degree of completeness, but it is believed that certain fundamental phases of the problem can be successfully analyzed within a short time and that this analysis will give up a much clearer insight than we have formerly possessed into one of the most important problems confronting the American people. If so, the work will be of service to every citizen, and especially to the voters who must share in determining the immigration policy of the United States."

It is expected by the bureau that light will be shed by the investigations now under way upon these questions: To what degree and how promptly does immigration respond to an industrial boom or emigration to a depression? Have fluctuations in migration been so timed that they have increased or decreased the intensity of the upward swing of the cycle? Has the increase in immigration in periods of activity tended to prolong these periods by moderating the increase in labor costs per unit of output? On the other hand, how has migration affected unemployment in the periods of depression? Milch Goats in America.

Six thousand goats are listed in the American milch goat registry. Three breeds are recognized. The Toggenburgs were originally imported from the valley of that name in Switzerland. They are distinguished by exact brown and white markings, especially about the head. Saanen goats hail from the Saanen valley, Switzerland, and are pure white. The Anglo-Nubian goats are a cross between the common English goat and the Nubians of Africa. They are a spotted variety and vary in color.

Banish Worry and Anxiety.

Many of those who have failed in life could have accomplished great things if they could only have kept themselves in harmony, if they could only have cut out of their lives the friction. The worry and the anxiety frittered away their energy and wasted their life forces.—Orison Swett Marden, in Chicago Daily News.

GOLD BRICKS

Our People Lose $500,000,000 Annually in Fake Schemes.

Down to the year 1924 the human race continues to be gullible. The desire of the human race is to get something for nothing, to get rich quick, to win a place among the elect who do not have to work by some sleight-of-hand applied to finance. Some pick pockets, some rob banks, second stories and railroads. Some lie back and dream in the fashion of the story-teller who invented the Arabian Nights. Some print fake stock and sell it. Others, neither criminal nor completely idle, buy this fake stock in the hope of bonanza returns. Of this latter class there must be a great many, for in the United States alone in the year, 1923, according to Secretary Mellon, $500,000,000 was paid out to sharpers by investors who never saw their money again, nor ever will. Mr. Mellon is shocked at the credulity of his fellow citizens, as well he may be and makes a few suggestions in a booklet entitled, "How to Save Your Savings." The rules might be boiled down very easily into one: Never take a chance.

It is good advice. While the ancient urge to get something for nothing persists, people will go on floating shoe-string companies and those who know no better will take the bait. But finding out about such enterprises by personal experience is a form of education which costs annually just above half the national expenditure for all other public education. It is too much. Education of any sort is valuable, but this particular sort of instruction comes too high.—New York World.

Early United States Coins.

The office of the director of the mint says that the earliest coins were authorized by act of congress of April 2, 1792. This act authorized the manufacture of the ten dollar gold eagle, half eagle, quarter eagle, and the silver dollar, half dollar, quarter dollar, dime and half dime. It would be impossible to state which were minted first, as they were all coined about the same time.

TO SEEK CAUSES OF IMMIGRATION

Bureau Wants to Ascertain Relation to Labor Supply.

An investigation of migration and labor supply has been begun by the National Bureau of Economic Research at the request of the National Research council. The work will be done at New York by Dr. Harry Jerome under the supervision of the bureau's director of research, Dr. Wesley C. Mitchell. Outlining the bureau's purpose in undertaking this study, Doctor Mitchell stated:

"Since the National Bureau of Economic Research aims to aid all thoughtful men, however divergent their views of public policy, to base their discussions on objective knowledge as distinguished from subjective opinion, it is keenly interested in the series of investigations into human migration, inaugurated by the National Research council.

"The Research council, representing the scientific interests of the country, holds that the national policy should be shaped in the light of the best obtainable knowledge of the causes and effects of mass movements of population from one country to another. To gain such knowledge it is necessary to enlist the co-operation of workers from several fields—biology, anthropology, sanitary science, psychology, economics and sociology. Accordingly a committee of the council has been appointed to select qualified investigators and to secure such co-ordination of their work as is necessary.

"This committee on scientific problems of human migration, under the chairmanship of Dr. Robert M. Yerkes, has asked the National Bureau of Economic Research to undertake a study of the relation of migration to the supply of labor.

Bureau's Earlier Work.

"Much of the bureau's earlier work will throw light upon the problems of migration. The bearing of per capita income figures for various countries is obvious. Our careful estimates of the population of the United States at the beginning and middle of each year since 1900 afford a better basis than the government figures for computing the annual percentages of immigration and emigration.

"The bureau has also carefully estimated the average number of persons gainfully employed in each year since 1900, and the apportionment of these persons among different industries. These estimates have been published in volume 2 of 'Income in the United States.' Furthermore, there is presented in our recent study of 'Employment Hours and Earnings in Prosperity and Depression' a comprehensive picture of the fluctuations in employment during a typical cycle. In this volume appear for the first time figures showing the absolute changes of employment in all the great industrial groups—figures which provide the long-lacking base which is prerequisite for measuring the absolute volume of employment in other years.

"Upon the foundation laid in the bureau's work and the government's records, Doctor Jerome is building an important superstructure. He believes it will be possible to throw light upon the way in which the varying supply of foreign labor has affected the growth of various industries, and how it has modified their industrial technique and organization.

Hopes For Co-operation.

In addition to making use of the available published material Doctor Jerome hopes to secure the co-operation of industrial leaders and experts in the solution of this problem. To study the effect of labor supply upon industry, however, is only one phase of the problem. It is just as important to discover the causes as well as the effects of immigration. An effort will be made to measure as accurately as possible the importance of the relative forces which cause foreigners to move from their old homes to our shores, or, as is true in many years, to return to their native places of residence.

"Needless to say the field of inquiry is so large that it is impossible to cover it quickly with any degree of completeness, but it is believed that certain fundamental phases of the problem can be successfully analyzed within a short time and that this analysis will give up a much clearer insight than we have formerly possessed into one of the most important problems confronting the American people. If so, the work will be of service to every citizen, and especially to the voters who must share in determining the immigration policy of the United States."

It is expected by the bureau that light will be shed by the investigations now under way upon these questions: To what degree and how promptly does immigration respond to an industrial boom or emigration to a depression? Have fluctuations in migration been so timed that they have increased or decreased the intensity of the upward swing of the cycle? Has the increase in immigration in periods of activity tended to prolong these periods by moderating the increase in labor costs per unit of output? On the other hand, how has migration affected unemployment in the periods of depression? Has emigration in large numbers materially mitigated unemployment, or has migration been so tardy in its reaction to changed conditions that it has tended to intensify wage declines and to swell the ranks of the unemployed?

Hotel Stenographer
BY ROE FULKERSON
"All she can do is talk baby talk, and say 'Gimme,'" exclaimed the Hotel Stenographer disgustedly.
"Yes, yes," said the House Detective, "Go on."

"It is enough to take the eggs out of Easter the way that girls gets by, Kelly. The more I see of women the less I think of men as thinking human beings."
"A steady boy with a good job who is edging his way towards a bank account, a bungalow and a bunch of kids gets crazy when he gets ready to pick a life partner. Instead of picking a girl, who will guard his bank account scrub his bungalow and spank his children, he will pick one of these baby talk dolls who has both hands stretched out towards the bank account, and who does not even scrub her own face, let alone the kitchen floor and whose idea of a baby is a little thing a nurse pushes along the walks of the park in the afternoon about matinee time."
"I have my hair bobbed, I carry a powder puff in my dress, I do as artistic work with a lipstick as most of 'em, Kelly, and no guy, who ever backed me out on a dance floor, ever backed me off again as long as he could jolly an encore out of the orchestra. But every time one of the boys gets ready to buy a solitaire and a wedding ring, he slips thru my fingers and hooks himself up with one of these 'gimme' babies, who, thinks life is one long series of marshmallows and cigarettes."

"But I'd rather spend my life hammering the keys of this typewriter than to be married to some of them, anyhow. I guess one of these days Mr. Right will come along and I will fall for him. When I do, Kelly, if one of those blue eyed baby talkers parks near him, I shall lead him away home because men will fall for 'em as sure as you talk too much. Get a move on, I got to work."

HOW MAN WILL LOOK 500 YEARS FROM NOW
Will Be Weaker, Owing to Mechanical Aids.

The last 500 years record a gradual change in man. His physical powers have become weaker, his senses are less keen, his teeth are worse, and he would be unable to stand for any length of time the hardships of his forebears.

This weakening process will not stop today. Therefore, in considering the average man of 500 years hence we must obviously expect him to be a far weaker creature than he is today, owing to the use of many artificial aids.

We cannot expect any striking physical changes in the man of 2423, writes Prof. A. M. Low, for it takes thousands of years to alter our structure, but he will in all probability seek to improve his body by grafting and electrical treatment and by permanently fixed mechanical appliances, such as sight correctors—a great improvement on the present clumsy glasses.

He will dress in sensible and comfortable one-piece clothing in place of the absurd conglomeration of clothes worn at present and, owing to the increase in baldness, will wear a hat of some description practically all the time.

Just as our modern meals are of less importance to us than the "spreads" of olden times, so will the future man pay even less attention to food; one meal a day will possibly suffice, assisted, if necessary, by "snacks" in concentrated form, and compared with today his standards of living will be extremely luxurious.

His lower limbs will become atrophied from disuse, for his methods of travel on moving sidewalks and communicating by wireless will render any strenuous travel unnecessary.

His educational standard will be very high without any exception; thought will be an infinitely quicker process, and all amusements will be of an intellectual variety. Games of brute strength will die out, boxing will be regarded much as we regard the brutal prize fights of bygone days, and in every way it will be an age of brains and not brawn!

He will treat women in what we should regard as a most casual manner. He will think nothing of stopping one for a light for his pipe. By 2423 women will have educated and advanced themselves more rapidly than at present seems possible, and will thus be in a position to compete with man in every way. However, as he will scientifically understand "love," he will treat it with far greater respect.

His life will be, relatively speaking, far more complex than ours, and by 2423 the study of wave motion will have led to the habitual use of wireless sight, and many other developments of that period.

The mental transference of thought at present claimed by many tricksters, but not a scientific fact—will be thoroughly understood, and that point alone will increase efficiency and speed up his mode of life generally. He will most certainly use a shorter phonetic system of spelling.—London Express.

Nature Embalms Bodies
Nature can sometimes do as good a job in mummification as the expert embalmers of Tut-Ankh-Amen's day. Not long ago the body of an ancient warrior was exhumed from a Greek temple where he had been buried 1,540 years ago without any special effort having been made toward preserving his body. It was so well preserved that the wounds which killed him were plainly visible. Within the last few months a perfectly preserved body, buried 221 years ago, was exhumed in Germany, and many such instances have been noted. The explanation is not known but seems to be connected with the cause of death, the bodies of persons dying from bacterial infection being apparently more prone to decay.

Hare and Hair
A newly married man bought a rabbit and asked his wife to make a rabbit pie for his supper. He returned home in the evening expecting to find a good meal awaiting him, but, instead, he found his wife in tears.
"Well!" he exclaimed, "what's the matter, dear?"
"Your supper isn't ready, darling," replied his wife, between sobs. "I've been all the afternoon trying to pull the hairs out of that rabbit."

Appropriate
The occasion was a society wedding, Miss — was being married to Lord —. Something went wrong and the bride had to wait ten minutes for the bridegroom's arrival.
When he did turn up the anthem, chosen by the bride, was sung: "I waited for the Lord."

Wanted to Be Exact
He was a very keen young business man. He had written on a square of paper to be stuck outside his office door. "Out to lunch. Back in half an hour."
An afterthought struck him. He added the words, "Been out 25 minutes already."

He Didn't Know It!
"I suppose," said the master to a boy who was joining the English literature class, "you don't know much about Tennyson's works?"
"No, sir," answered the lad, "I can't say I do, though I know most of the factories in the town."—Boys' Life.

FIND TEMPLES IN ANCIENT BABYLON

Sumerian Town Unearthed Was Seat of Learning.

The great library of Kish, seat of the oldest empire known to history, soon will be brought to light, scientists digging in the mold of 7,000 years believe.

D. C. Davies, director of the Field Museum of Natural History, announced that he had received reports from his group of excavators working in conjunction with Assyriologists of Oxford, that they had unearthed the oldest temple known to man.

In the inner recesses, Mr. Davies believes, will be found thousands of clay tablets inscribed in the cuneiform characters of the ancient Sumerians. These books, literally plano-convex bricks bearing wedge-shaped letters readily legible to the Assyriologists, will reveal the secrets of the very dawn of history.

Ancient Tablet Translated.
One of the tablets, dating to 2,100 years before Christ, already has been received by museum authorities and has been translated. It tells of the rebuilding of the temples of Ishtar, god of war, and his spouse, Ilibaba. It was found in the ruins of a once lofty structure in the plain between the Tigris and Euphrates, in Mesopotamia. The ruins are eight miles from the site of ancient Babylon and near it, the scientists believe, will be found the still older temples and palaces in one of which will be found the great library of Kish numbering thousands of volumes.

"The temple of the war god of ancient Sumeria has been definitely located," wrote Prof. Stephen H. Langdon, former University of Michigan savant and director of the museum's Mesopotamian expedition, in a letter received by Mr. Davies. "Now we are rapidly advancing toward the inner temple, where we expect to come upon the temple library."

Ituna Rebuilt Temple.
The Field Museum-Oxford expedition has actually come upon the lofty stage tower of the capital of the oldest kings and the seat of the first empire known to human history. It is pointed out that Sam-Su-Ituna, who had his press agents put his exploits on that stamped brick of the Twenty-first century B. C., was merely rebuilding what somebody before him—how many centuries the scientists do not dare guess—had built into the heavens.

A translation of the inscription on the tablet of Sam-Su-Ituna, who was the seventh king of the first dynasty of Babylon, reads as follows:
"Sam-Su-Ituna, the mighty King.
"King of Babylon,
"King of Kish,
"King of the Four Regions;
"Unir-kidur-mah (priest)
"To the God Ilibaba,
"And the Goddess Ishtar,
"In Kish bath built anew
"And raised its head
"Like unto the heavens."
Library of Great Value.

According to Assyriologists, the discovery of the library of Kish will prove of much greater historical value than the excavations of Tut-Ankh-Amen's tomb, as it will throw a light on civilization 3,000 years before the Egyptian Pharaoh lived and reigned.
The very earliest kingdom listed in history is Kish," said Prof. A. T. Olmstead of Illinois university, one of the officers of the American Oriental society.

"Kish flourished some 4,000 years before the birth of Christ. Its kings are mythical, including Etana, who ascended into heaven. This leads to the belief that Kish was the first kingdom after the flood.
"Some of its names seem Semic, not Sumerian, and the greatest problem of historians is the relation of these two races and which is earlier, in the alluvium. The library of Kish should throw some very valuable light on that subject."

Discovery of Radium Celebrated in Paris

The discovery of radium 25 years ago by Mme. Marie Curie and her late husband, Prof. Pierre Curie, was celebrated recently in Paris at the Sorbonne, with many notables in attendance.
President Millerand in an address voiced the gratitude of the world to the modest woman scientist largely responsible for the discovery.

Mme. Curie expressed regret that her husband had not lived to receive the honors due him. She said that the primitiveness of their laboratory and the difficulties under which they worked gave an air of romance to the discovery, but that this romantic element had delayed success.

Friends Measure Services in Marks

"For faithful performance of duty along his route during the last year," Martin J. Cahill, a member of the Lynn (Mass.) police department, was presented by friends with 100,000 marks.

As a rule of the department is that money gifts received by patrolmen shall be turned into the Relief Association Fund, Cahill and his fellow policemen are figuring how much the relief treasury will be enriched.
[At present rates of exchange 100,000 German paper marks are worth about two millionths of a cent.]

AMUSEMENTS

Charles Maigne, Paramount director has proved himself a disciple of William DeMille's policy of "making pictures without destroying literature" in his direction of "Drums of Fate" a new Paramount picture with Mary Miles Minter, which comes to the Met theater Monday and Tuesday.

Very few alterations of the original novel "Sacrifice" by Stephen French Whitman which is one of the most recent contributions to American fiction had to be made. This was due to the fact that the story had excellent screen possibilities—in fact, its situations were all capable of picturization and its characters strong, picturesque and highly interesting.

So suitable was this particular story for screen adaptation, that the author's original manuscript was purchased by the producers before the book went to the press, early in 1922.

The distinctive features of this story are an unusual love interest, hinging on the romance of the man and the girl each of whom has fallen in love with the other's photograph two years before their meeting; their cruel separation when the man is called away to Africa on an expedition the morning after their marriage and the fate that keeps them apart and makes their reunion seem impossible when the girl, thinking the man dead, remarries at the insistence of her guardian. There is also a prophecy of the death of the man by his Arab servant, Hamoud. These elements create a strong suspense which holds the story up in tenseness and dramatic quality until the end, when a logical happy ending gives a very pleasing finish to the story.

Miss Minter is surrounded by a very strong cast including M. B. Flynn, George Fawcett, Robert Cain, Casson Ferguson, Bertram Grassby, Noble Johnson, etc.

60 COUNTIES TO SEND FOLK TO FARM PARLEY.

In 60 Ohio counties the Ohio State university has word, farming men and women have been appointed to represent their home communities in Ohio's first conference on the rural future, to be held at Columbus as part of farmers' week, February 4 to 8.

The other 28 Ohio counties are making similar appointments, says H. C. Ramsower, director of agricultural extension and complete representation of the entire Ohio countryside is expected at the conference Wednesday, February 4.

Stenographic record will be kept of conference proceedings and the gist of the discussion will be issued by the college of agriculture in a bulletin, Director Ramsower announced.

Among the speakers listed to line up the facts of Ohio's farming past and present are Ex-Dean Eugene Davenport, of Illinois; George E. Roberts, New York financier and W. O. Thompson, president of the university.

ORDINANCE NO. 469.

Whereas, this Council has requested the City Auditor to issue her certificate as to the estimated life of the improvement proposed to be constructed from the proceeds of the bonds hereinafter referred to, and the City Auditor has certified to this Council such estimated life as ten years, and has further certified the maximum maturity of such bonds as ten years; and

Whereas, this Council estimates that a tax for said bonds will first appear upon the duplicate for the tax year, 1925, and that the first tax settlement with the County Treasurer next following the inclusion of a tax for this issue in the annual budget by the County Auditor, as provided by law, will be obtained on or before the first day of September, 1925, and will require $1,858.45 for interest until such taxes are collected and available; and

Whereas, the object of this ordinance is to issue said bonds for the purpose of paying the City's portion of paving Franklin Street, from the East line of Scioto Street to the East line of Mingo Street.
Now therefore, be it ordained by the Council of the City of Circleville, Ohio, Section 1. That for the purpose of raising money to pay the City of Circleville's share of paving Franklin Street from the East line of Scioto Street to the East line of Mingo Street with hard-burned vitrified paving brick to the width of thirty-eight feet it is hereby declared to be necessary to issue and sell bonds and there shall be issued and sold by the City of Circleville, State of Ohio, in the sum of Thirty-Three Thousand Seven Hundred and Ninety Dollars, ($33,790.00) which sum Council considers and deems a just portion of the cost of said improvement for the said City to pay under Section No. 3820 of the General Code of Ohio, and which portion is not less than one-fiftieth of the whole cost of said improvement, and said sum pays for the intersections in full and also includes one year's interest in the sum of $1,858.45 and the remainder of the costs are to be raised by special assessments.

Section 2. Said bonds shall be numbered from one to thirty-three, both inclusive and shall also be serially numbered from 1 to 33, both inclusive. Section 3. Said bonds shall be prepared by the City Auditor, signed by the Mayor and City Auditor, sealed with the City Seal and recorded in the Office of the Sinking Fund, and shall express upon their face the purpose for which they are issued and the fact that they are issued in pursuance to law, and this ordinance shall be payable, both principal and interest at the office of the Treasurer of the City of Circleville, State of Ohio; shall be issued and sold under the direction of the Finance Committee of Council, and shall bear such consecutive numbers as said committee or the proper officers of the city may determine.

Section 4. That the proceeds of the sale of said bonds, exclusive of the premium and accrued interest thereon, shall be placed in the City Treasury to the credit of the Franklin Street Paving Improvement Fund, and shall be disbursed on proper vouchers which are dated March 1, 1924, and are issued in the sum of $33,790 interest at 5½ per cent for the purpose of paying the city's share of the cost of paving Franklin Street with hard-burned vitrified paving brick from the East line of Scioto street to the East line of Mingo Street and for no other purpose, for which use said money shall be appropriated; and the premiums and accrued interest received from said sale shall be transferred to the Trustees of the Sinking Fund, to be applied by them in the manner provided by law.

Section 5. That the faith, revenue and credit of the City of Circleville, State of Ohio, are hereby pledged for the prompt payment of both principal and interest of the bonds herein before described, in accordance with the laws and Constitution of the State of Ohio.

Section 6. That for the purpose of providing the necessary funds to pay the interest on the foregoing issue of bonds promptly when and as the same fall due, and also to create and maintain a sinking fund sufficient to discharge the said bonds at maturity, there shall be and is hereby levied on all the taxable property of said City of Circleville, State of Ohio, in addition to all other taxes, a direct tax annually during the period for which said bonds are to run, in an amount sufficient to provide for the interest and principal of said bonds as they mature.

Section 7. That said tax shall be and is hereby ordered computed, certified and levied and extended upon the tax duplicate and collected by the same officers in the same manner and at the same time that the taxes for general purposes for each of said years are certified, extended and collected. That all funds derived from said tax levies required shall be placed in a separate and distinct fund, which together with all interest collected on the same shall be irrevocably pledged for the payment of the interest and principal of said bonds when and as the same fall due. Hotel Stenographer

"All she can do is talk baby talk, and say 'Gimme,'" exclaimed the Hotel Stenographer disgustedly.

"Yes, yes," said the House Detective, "Go on."

"It is enough to take the eggs out of Easter the way that girls gets by, Kelly. The more I see of women the less I think of men as thinking human beings."

"A steady boy with a good job who is edging his way towards a bank account, a bungalow and a bunch of kids gets crazy when he gets ready to pick a life partner. Instead of picking a girl, who will guard his bank account scrub his bungalow and spank his children, he will pick one of these baby talk dolls who has both hands stretched out towards the bank account, and who does not even scrub her own face, let alone the kitchen floor and whose idea of a baby is a little thing a nurse pushes along the walks of the park in the afternoon about matinee time."

"I have my hair bobbed, I carry a powder puff in my dress, I do as artistic work with a lipstick as most of 'em, Kelly, and no guy, who ever backed me out on a dance floor, ever backed me off again as long as he could jolly an encore out of the orchestra. But every time one of the boys gets ready to buy a solitaire and a wedding ring, he slips thru my fingers and hooks himself up with one of these 'gimme' babies, who, thinks life is one long series of mashmallows and cigarettes."

"But I'd rather spend my life hammering the keys of this typewriter than to be married to some of them, anyhow. I guess one of these days Mr. Right will come along and I will fall for him. When I do, Kelly, if one of those blue eyed baby talkers parks near him, I shall lead him away home because men will fall for 'em as sure as you talk too much. Get a move on, I got to work."

HOW MAN WILL LOOK 500 YEARS FROM NOW
Will Be Weaker, Owing to Mechanical Aids.

The last 500 years record a gradual change in man. His physical powers have become weaker, his senses are less keen, his teeth are worse, and he would be unable to stand for any length of time the hardships of his forebears.

This weakening process will not stop today. Therefore, in considering the average man of 500 years hence we must obviously expect him to be a far weaker creature than he is today, owing to the use of many artificial aids.

We cannot expect any striking physical changes in the man of 2423, writes Prof. A. M. Low, for it takes thousands of years to alter our structure, but he will in all probability seek to improve his body by grafting and electrical treatment and by permanently fixed mechanical appliances, such as slight correctors—a great improvement on the present clumsy glasses.

He will dress in sensible and comfortable one-piece clothing in place of the absurd conglomeration of clothes worn at present and, owing to the increase in baldness, will wear a hat of some description practically all the time.

Just as our modern meals are of less importance to us than the "spreads" of olden times, so will the future man pay even less attention to food; one meal a day will possibly suffice, assisted, if necessary, by "snacks" in concentrated form, and compared with today his standards of living will be extremely luxurious.

His lower limbs will become atrophied from disuse, for his methods of travel on moving sidewalks and communicating by wireless will render any strenuous travel unnecessary.

His educational standard will be very high without any exception; thought will be an infinitely quicker process, and all amusements will be of an intellectual variety. Games of brute strength will die out, boxing will be regarded much as we regard the brutal prize fights of bygone days, and in every way it will be an age of brains and not brawn!

He will treat women in what we should regard as a most casual manner. He will think nothing of stopping one for a light for his pipe. By 2423 women will have educated and advanced themselves more rapidly than at present seems possible, and will thus be in a position to compete with man in every way. However, as he will scientifically understand "love," he will treat it with far greater respect.

His life will be, relatively speaking, far more complex than ours, and by 2423 the study of wave motion will have led to the habitual use of wireless sight, and many other developments of that period.

The mental transference of thought at present claimed by many tricksters, but not a scientific fact—will be thoroughly understood, and that point alone will increase efficiency and speed up his mode of life generally. He will most certainly use a shorter phonetic system of spelling.—London Express.

Nature Embalms Bodies
Nature can sometimes do as good a job in mummification as the expert embalmers of Tut-Ankh-Amen's day. Not long ago the body of an ancient warrior was exhumed from a Greek temple where he had been buried 1,500 years ago without any especial effort having been made toward preserving his body. It was so well preserved that the wounds which killed him were plainly visible. Within the last few months a perfectly preserved body, buried 221 years ago, was exhumed in Germany, and many such instances have been noted. The explanation is not known but seems to be connected with the cause of death, the bodies of persons dying from bacterial infection being apparently more prone to decay.

Hare and Hair
A newly married man bought a rabbit and asked his wife to make a rabbit pie for his supper. He returned home in the evening expecting to find a good meal awaiting him, but, instead, he found his wife in tears.

"Well!" he exclaimed, "what's the matter, dear?"

"Your supper isn't ready, darling," replied his wife, between sobs. "I've been all the afternoon trying to pull the hairs out of that rabbit!"

Appropriate
The occasion was a society wedding, Miss — was being married to Lord —. Something went wrong and the bride had to wait ten minutes for the bridegroom's arrival.

When he did turn up the anthem, chosen by the bride, was sung: "I waited for the Lord."

Wanted to Be Exact
He was a very keen young business man. He had written on a square of paper to be stuck outside his office door. "Out to lunch. Back in half an hour."

An afterthought struck him. He added the words, "Been out 25 minutes already."

He Didn't Know It!
"I suppose," said the master to a boy who was joining the English literature class, "you don't know much about Tennyson's works?"

"No, sir," answered the lad, "I can't say I do, though I know most of the factories in the town."—Boys' Life.

FIND TEMPLES IN ANCIENT BABYLON

Sumerian Town Unearthed Was Seat of Learning.

The great library of Kish, seat of the oldest empire known to history, soon will be brought to light, scientists digging in the mold of 7,000 years believe.

D. C. Davies, director of the Field Museum of Natural History, announced that he had received reports from his group of excavators working in conjunction with Assyriologists of Oxford, that they had unearthed the oldest temple known to man.

In the inner recesses, Mr. Davies believes, will be found thousands of clay tablets inscribed in the cuneiform characters of the ancient Sumerians. These books, literally plano-convex bricks bearing wedge-shaped letters readily legible to the Assyriologists, will reveal the secrets of the very dawn of history.

Ancient Tablet Translated.
One of the tablets, dating to 2,100 years before Christ, already has been received by museum authorities and has been translated. It tells of the rebuilding of the temples of Ishtar, god of war, and his spouse, Ilbaba. It was found in the ruins of a once lofty structure in the plain between the Tigris and Euphrates, in Mesopotamia. The ruins are eight miles from the site of ancient Babylon and near it, the scientists believe, will be found the still older temples and palaces in one of which will be found the great library of Kish numbering thousands of volumes.

"The temple of the war god of ancient Sumeria has been definitely located," wrote Prof. Stephen H. Langdon, former University of Michigan savant and director of the museum's Mesopotamian expedition, in a letter received by Mr. Davies. "Now we are rapidly advancing toward the inner temple, where we expect to come upon the temple library."

Ituna Rebuilt Temple.
"The Field Museum-Oxford expedition has actually come upon the lofty stage tower of the capital of the oldest kings and the seat of the first empire known to human history. It is pointed out that Sam-Su-Ituna, who had his press agents put his exploits on that stamped brick of the Twenty-first century B. C., was merely rebuilding what somebody before him—how many centuries the scientists do not dare guess—had built into the heavens."

A translation of the inscription on the tablet of Sam-Su-Ituna, who was the seventh king of the first dynasty of Babylon, reads as follows:

"Sam-Su-Ituna, the mighty King.
"King of Babylon,
"King of Kish,
"King of the Four Regions;
"Unir-kidur-mah (priest)
"To the God Ilbaba,
"And the Goddess Ishtar,
"In Kish hath built anew
"And raised its head
"Like unto the heavens."
Library of Great Value.

According to Assyriologists, the discovery of the library of Kish will prove of much greater historical value than the excavations of Tut-Ankh-Amen's tomb, as it will throw a light on civilization 3,000 years before the Egyptian Pharaoh lived and reigned.

"The very earliest kingdom listed in history is Kish," said Prof. A. T. Olmstead of Illinois university, one of the officers of the American Oriental society.

"Kish flourished some 4,000 years before the birth of Christ. Its kings are mythical, including Etana, who ascended into heaven. This leads to the belief that Kish was the first kingdom after the flood."

"Some of its names seem Semitic, not Sumerian, and the greatest problem of historians is the relation of these two races and which is earlier, in the alluvium. The library of Kish should throw some very valuable light on that subject."

Discovery of Radium Celebrated in Paris

The discovery of radium 25 years ago by Mme. Marie Curie and her late husband, Prof. Pierre Curie, was celebrated recently in Paris at the Sorbonne, with many notables in attendance.

President Millerand in an address voiced the gratitude of the world to the modest woman scientist largely responsible for the discovery.

Mme. Curie expressed regret that her husband had not lived to receive the honors due him. She said that the primitiveness of their laboratory and the difficulties under which they worked gave an air of romance to the discovery, but that this romantic element had delayed success.

Friends Measure Services in Marks

"For faithful performance of duty along his route during the last year," Martin J. Cahill, a member of the Lynn (Mass.) police department, was presented by friends with 100,000 marks.

As a rule of the department is that money gifts received by patrolmen shall be turned into the Relief Association Fund, Cahill and his fellow policemen are figuring how much the relief treasury will be enriched.

[At present rates of exchange 100,000 German paper marks are worth about two millionths of a cent.]

AMUSEMENTS

Charles Maigne, Paramount director has proved himself a disciple of William DeMille's policy of 'making pictures without destroying literature' in his direction of "Drums of Fate" a new Paramount picture with Mary Miles Minter, which comes to the Met theater Monday and Tuesday.

Very few alterations of the original novel "Sacrifice" by Stephen French Whitman which is one of the most recent contributions to American fiction had to be made. This was due to the fact that the story had excellent screen possibilities—in fact, its situations were all capable of picturization and its characters strong, picturesque and highly interesting.

So suitable was this particular story for screen adaptation, that the author's original manuscript was purchased by the producers before the book went to the press, early in 1922.

The distinctive features of this story are an unusual love interest, hinging on the romance of the man and the girl each of whom has fallen in love with the other's photograph two years before their meeting; their cruel separation when the man is called away to Africa on an exploration-expedition the morning after their marriage and the fate that keeps them apart and makes their reunion seem impossible when the girl, thinking the man dead, remarries at the insistence of her guardian. There is also a prophecy of the death of the man by his Arab servant, Hamoud. These elements create a strong suspense which holds the story up in tenseness and dramatic quality until the end, when a logical happy ending gives a very pleasing finish to the story.

Miss Minter is surrounded by a very strong cast including M. B. Flynn, George Fawcett, Robert Cain, Casson Ferguson, Bertram Grassby, Noble Johnson, etc.

Highest Velocity Known
Light from a star, or any source, travels with a velocity of 186,000 miles in a second. This is the highest velocity known, and in one year passes over a distance of about 63,000 times the distance from the earth to the sun. As the sun is at a distance of about 92,900,000 miles from the earth, this amounts to saying that light travels six trillion miles in a year. This unit is the light-year and is used in measuring the distances of the stars. As the Pleiades are 300 light-years distant they are, then, 300 times six trillion miles away, which represents to us an inconceivably great distance.—Nature Magazine.

He Went Prepared

Smith walked up the street the other evening with a box of chocolates under one arm and a big package of meat under the other.
"Hello, Smith," said Brown. "You housekeeping? I didn't know you were married."
"I'm not yet."
"What are you doing with those chocolates and meat, then?"
"Going to see my girl!"
"Do you have to furnish the family with meat already?"
"Oh, no. The sweets are for the girl and the meat is for the dog. I have to square both."

Keep the Roads Open

Evergreen trees protect highways and railroads against the damage of drifting snow. In all regions of our country evergreen trees are giving great service in helping to keep open lines of transportation. Many of the railroad companies of the east are now planting single and in some places double rows of evergreen trees along their rights of way to prevent the shifting snows from being deposited in banks and drifts on the tracks.—Nature Magazine.

Rare Book.

The first printed book on bookkeeping was published in Venice in 1494. The author was Luca Pacioli, an Italian monk, who wrote it in Latin and Italian, originating many of the algebraic signs now in use, such as plus and minus. The precious volume has recently been presented to the University of California.

Little to Be Gained by Cultivation of Alfalfa

So long as the stand is satisfactory and the plants are making good growth there is little to be gained by cultivating alfalfa, says the United States Department of Agriculture. A slight increase in yield is sometimes obtained by such treatment, but experiments have shown that it is not ordinarily enough to pay the additional cost, and the life of the stand is prolonged but little, if any.

Under certain conditions, however, cultivation of this crop may be worth while. Where irrigation waters leave a crust of silt on the fields the use of the harrow to break it up seems advisable. Also where irrigated alfalfa is pastured it is sometimes a good practice to use a harrow to loosen up the soil, especially if it is heavy-textured. When weeds and grass threaten to choke out the alfalfa the life of the stand may be profitably prolonged for a year or two by harrowing.

The best implement for this purpose is the alfalfa harrow, which is a modification of the spring-tooth harrow. The spike-tooth harrow may be used on the lighter soils, but is of little use on the heavy soils. The disk harrow is very liable to prove injurious.

Keep the Roads Open

Evergreen trees protect highways and railroads against the damage of drifting snow. In all regions of our country evergreen trees are giving great service in helping to keep open lines of transportation. Many of the railroad companies of the east are now planting single and in some places double rows of evergreen trees along their rights of way to prevent the shifting snows from being deposited in banks and drifts on the tracks.—Nature Magazine.

Rare Book.

The first printed book on bookkeeping was published in Venice in 1494. The author was Luca Pacioli, an Italian monk, who wrote it in Latin and Italian, originating many of the algebraic signs now in use, such as plus and minus. The precious volume has recently been presented to the University of California.

Little to Be Gained by Cultivation of Alfalfa

So long as the stand is satisfactory and the plants are making good growth there is little to be gained by cultivating alfalfa, says the United States Department of Agriculture. A slight increase in yield is sometimes obtained by such treatment, but experiments have shown that it is not ordinarily enough to pay the additional cost, and the life of the stand is prolonged but little, if any.

Under certain conditions, however, cultivation of this crop may be worth while. Where irrigation waters leave a crust of silt on the fields the use of the harrow to break it up seems advisable. Also where irrigated alfalfa is pastured it is sometimes a good practice to use a harrow to loosen up the soil, especially if it is heavy-textured. When weeds and grass threaten to choke out the alfalfa the life of the stand may be profitably prolonged for a year or two by harrowing.

The best implement for this purpose is the alfalfa harrow, which is a modification of the spring-tooth harrow. The spike-tooth harrow may be used on the lighter soils, but is of little use on the heavy soils. The disk harrow is very liable to prove injurious.

She Is Whole Congregation.

In the oldest church at Sunbury, Pa., a log building looking the same as it did when built years ago, Miss Mary Emma Walter, aged eighty-one, has for 33 years worshiped alone each Sunday. She is a Quaker and has preserved the quaint meeting house, beside which her parents are buried.

France to Repay Uruguayan Loan.

A convention has been signed at Montevideo, Uruguay, under which France undertakes to pay back to Uruguay the 15,000,000 gold pesos borrowed during the war for the purchase of produce, the repayment to be in ten installments of 1,500,000 gold pesos each, one to fall due every six months.

The papoose cradle, or "Pa-bi-chi," is found in every Plute dwelling, and it is the masterpiece of the Indian mother's achievements. Cradle and carriage in one, it holds the youthful scion lashed and shawl-bound and safe and content.

Paper Backing for Pictures.
To paste new paper backings on framed pictures, the paper, cut to the proper size, should first be floated in a pan of water until it is entirely wet. The paste should be applied to the frame, and the paper, from which the actual drops of water have been pressed, should be pressed into place upon the frame. As the paper dries it will shrink, making it a smoothly stretched backing.

CONFUSED BY "DARK STAGE"

Actors Frequently Are Befuddled When Lights Are Shut Off at End of Scenes.

In an American quick-fire play there occurred one rapid change of scene which made it impossible to fix the scenery in position. Portions of it, therefore, were held up by concealed stage hands. Miss Lord had to rush onto the darkened stage just as her stage husband was committing suicide and utter a piercing shriek.

On the night in question she mistook her bearings in the darkness, and gave her shriek in the wrong spot. It happened to be right in the ear of one of the stage hands holding up a piece of scenery. He promptly responded to her shriek with another, and fell over one way, while his scenery fell over the other. Then the shrieks became general.

Somewhat reminiscent, this, of another story in which an actor lost his bearings on a darkened stage. The sudden darkness was used instead of a curtain at the end of a scene, and when the lights went up again for his call he was discovered bowing to the back-cloth!

GIRDLES FAMOUS IN HISTORY

Garment, Still in Favor, Made Vital Distinction of Caste in Olden Times.

The history of the girdle, says the Westminster Gazette, is the history of civilization, and though, more than most of the little matters of mode, it has known very happily how to combine utility and the decorative, yet its third and most interesting phase of all has lain in its symbolism. It has even formed a bond between woman and goddess, and if Helen of Troy would have been, metaphorically speaking, in sore plight if she had had no girdle under which to tuck her skirts when she fled with Paris, how many devotees would Venus have lacked if she had had no magic girdle to inspire love and charm hearts, so that even great Juno herself, when she wanted very specially to please her husband, had to kneel very humbly to borrow it.

In Rome a man without a girdle stamped himself thereby as a lazy, good-for-nothing fellow, while it was the girdle which made a vital distinction between matron and maid. Roman girls wore girdles of white wool, curiously knotted, as emblem of their girlhood, and the unknotting of the bride's girdle by the bridegroom was an important part of the marriage ceremony.

Bernhardt, who did nothing by halves, wore no fewer than eight girdles when she played the part of Theodora. "I have just maddened myself thinking how eight girdles could be worn," wrote Burne-Jones. "It wouldn't be fair to call a necklace a girdle, or a garter. Eight girdles—however do they come? But I have the greatest confidence in her. I dream of those eight girdles around that twig of the Oriental willow."

Oration in Crimson Gulch.

"You placed a pitcher on the table," whispered Senator Sorghum, "to the chairman of the reception committee, 'but I notice you didn't put any water in it.'"

"I hurried around to give you a tip about that," said Judge Cactus Joe (the title having been conferred on him by popular consent for the purpose of this occasion). "I left the water out 'cause it 'ud only be in your own way. See that feller over there with eyebrows as big as his mustache?"

"Yes."
"That's Tarantula Tim. He makes a specialty of breakin' up meetin's. That pitcher ain't for you to drink out of. It's for you to throw as straight as you know how the minute you see Tim showin' a sign of gettin' restless."

Lincoln's Little Joke.
Once in his law days while Lincoln was in Chicago trying a suit, his wife had the roof taken off their house to make the house higher. On Lincoln's return he manifested great surprise, and asked a passerby, "Stranger, can you tell me where Lincoln lives?" Receiving the desired information, he then gravely entered the domicile.

PROCLAMATION LITERARY GEM

President Coolidge While Governor of Massachusetts Wrote of Lincoln.

Beautiful Tribute Paid to Mother of Great Emancipator—Interesting Document Has Been Likened to Those of Our First Martyr President.

With the approach of Lincoln day there has been a great demand in Washington for copies of the Lincoln Day Memorial proclamation issued in 1919 by Calvin Coolidge when he was governor of Massachusetts. Many of his admirers claim that this proclamation is a literary gem, not only because of its simplicity of language, but also of the high and noble thoughts contained therein. Many have stated that the humble origin of Lincoln and Coolidge, both being poor boys on the farm, had much to do in moulding their characters and gave them a better view of life as it affects all of the people, not merely a few.

The proclamation reads as follows: "Five score and ten years ago that Divine Providence which infinite repetition has made only the more a miracle sent into the world a new life destined to save a nation. No star, no sign, foretold his coming. About his cradle all was poor and mean save only the source of all great men, the love of a wonderful woman. When she faded away in his tender years, from her deathbed in humble poverty she dowered her son with greatness. There can be no proper observance of a birthday which forgets the mother. Into his origin as into his life men long have looked and wondered. In wisdom great, but in humility greater in justice strong, but in compassion stronger, he became a leader of men by being a follower of the truth. He overcame evil with good. His presence filled the nation. He broke the might of oppression. He restored a race to its birthright. His mortal frame has vanished, but his spirit increases with the increasing years, the richest legacy of the greatest century. "Men show by what they worship what they are. It is no accident that before the great example of American manhood our people stand with respect and reverence. And in accordance with this sentiment our laws have provided for a formal recognition of the birthday of Abraham Lincoln, for in him is revealed our ideal, the hope of our country fulfilled.

"Now, therefore, by the authority of Massachusetts, the 12th day of February is set apart as Lincoln day, and its observance recommended as befits the beneficiaries of his life and the admirers of his character, in places of education and worship wherever our people meet one with another."

This proclamation, a timely and exceedingly interesting document, has been likened to the writings of Abraham Lincoln. There is a similarity in the phrases used by both and thru the president's recent speeches and messages the fact is apparent that he has always been a close student of Lincoln's policies and a great believer in the Civil war president's executive principles.

PLAN FOR CHICKS

Look After Incubator, Stove, Brooder,
Fuel and Disinfectant.

February days no matter how cold, suggest to experienced poultry men the time and opportunity to prepare for spring. A list of preparations usually includes:

Getting out the incubator, cleaning it well and disinfecting it thoroly with a coal tar spray; cleaning and disinfecting the egg trays; putting new cloths on the diaphragms; testing the thermometer and thermostat; placing the machine and leveling it in some spot where the temperature does not vary too much.

As to brooder stoves, the poultry extension specialists at the Ohio State university say, it's a good plan to get them out of hiding now, look over the pipes for bad joints, remove all bird nests and clean the whole apparatus, test the regulating device and the thermostat and disinfect it with a good spray.

One way for a poultryman to lose all his religion, the specialists aver, is for him to burn soft coal in his hard coal brooder stove. Soft coal brings worry and the loss of many chicks. Hard coal, chestnut size, is the best. Usually it is necessary to order well in advance.

A clean brooder house belongs with the clean brooder stove and incubator. A spray made of whitewash with five per cent disinfectant and a little kerosene or coal oil added will clean the house and kill all germs, lice and mites.

PROCLAMATION LITERARY GEM

President Coolidge While Governor of Massachusetts Wrote of Lincoln.

Beautiful Tribute Paid to Mather of Great Emancipator—Interesting Document Has Been Likened to Those of Our First Martyr President.

With the approach of Lincoln day there has been a great demand in Washington for copies of the Lincoln Day Memorial proclamation issued in 1919 by Calvin Coolidge when he was governor of Massachusetts. Many of his admirers claim that this proclamation is a literary gem, not only because of its simplicity of language, but also of the high and noble thoughts contained therein. Many have stated that the humble origin of Lincoln and Coolidge, both being poor boys on the farm, had much to do in moulding their characters and gave them a better view of life as it affects all of the people, not merely a few.

The proclamation reads as follows: "Five score and ten years ago that Divine Providence which infinite repetition has made only the more a miracle sent into the world a new life destined to save a nation. No star, no sign, foretold his coming. About his cradle all was poor and mean save only the source of all great men, the love of a wonderful woman. When she faded away in his tender years, from her deathbed in humble poverty she dowered her son with greatness. There can be no proper observance of a birthday which forgets the mother. Into his origin as into his life men long have looked and wondered. In wisdom great, but in humility greater in justice strong, but in compassion stronger, he became a leader of men by being a follower of the truth. He overcame evil with good. His presence filled the nation. He broke the might of oppression. He restored a race to its birthright. His mortal frame has vanished, but his spirit increases with the increasing years, the richest legacy of the greatest century. "Men show by what they worship what they are. It is no accident that before the great example of American manhood our people stand with respect and reverence. And in accordance with this sentiment our laws have provided for a formal recognition of the birthday of Abraham Lincoln, for in him is revealed our ideal, the hope of our country fulfilled.

"Now, therefore, by the authority of Massachusetts, the 12th day of February is set apart as Lincoln day, and its observance recommended as befits the beneficiaries of his life and the admirers of his character, in places of education and worship wherever our people meet one with another."

This proclamation, a timely and exceedingly interesting document, has been likened to the writings of Abraham Lincoln. There is a similarity in the phrases used by both and thru the president's recent speeches and messages the fact is apparent that he has always been a close student of Lincoln's policies and a great believer in the Civil war president's executive principles.

PLAN FOR CHICKS

Look After Incubator, Stove, Brooder, Fuel and Disinfectant.

February days no matter how cold, suggest to experienced poultry men the time and opportunity to prepare for spring. A list of preparations usually includes:

Getting out the incubator, cleaning it well and disinfecting it thoroly with a coal tar spray; cleaning and disinfecting the egg trays; putting new cloths on the diaphragms; testing the thermometer and thermostat; placing the machine and leveling it in some spot where the temperature does not vary too much.

As to brooder stoves, the poultry extension specialists at the Ohio State university say, it's a good plan to get them out of hiding now, look over the pipes for bad joints, remove all bird nests and clean the whole apparatus, test the regulating device and the thermostat and disinfect it with a good spray.

One way for a poultryman to lose all his religion, the specialists aver, is for him to burn soft coal in his hard coal brooder stove. Soft coal brings worry and the loss of many chicks. Hard coal, chestnut size, is the best. Usually it is necessary to order well in advance.

A clean brooder house belongs with the clean brooder stove and incubator. A spray made of whitewash with five per cent disinfectant and a little kerosene or coal oil added will clean the house and kill all germs, lice and mites.
